CITY OF FALLON
SWEPT BY FLAMES
SATURDAY NIGHT

Large Part of Business District is Swept Away—Conflagration Starts in a Vacant Building.

The expected at last happened Saturday night when a large portion of the business center of Fallon was laid in ashes.

At 9:45 a fire broke out in the rear of the old vacant restaurant building next door to the postoffice.

Three pistol shots gave the first alarm, followed a few moments later by the ringing of the fire bell. But even by that time the rear of the old restaurant, as well as the back part of the postoffice building seemed a mass of flames.

It only took a moment for anyone to realize that the entire tier of buildings in the blocks fronting on Main street with the exception of the stone structure of the Williams' store was doomed.

With heroic effort men went to work removing the contents of buildings and in a short time Main street from Williams avenue to Second street was filled with all sorts of goods, furniture and fixtures.

Next to the Williams store building at the corner of Main and Williams avenue is a vacant lot, and from there to First street was solid wooden structures, which made it impossible to do anything; to stay the on sweep of the flames. There the first attempt to stay the progress of the fire was across First street, where efforts were made to tear down the Woodliff building on the corner.

An attempt was made to dynamite the Woodliff building, occupied by the tailor shop on the corner of First and Main.

The first shot wrecked the building, and then a charge of black powder was touched off which set the building on fire. Those who watched carefully said this was no disadvantage as the structure would have been in flames in a few minutes anyway and the blaze served as a back fire.
